The Holidays are Upon Us

It's time for house cleaning (well, mine anyway), table setting, card mailing (mine), tree trimming (mine also), family gatherings and FOOD. We hope that you and your families have a wonderful and safe winter holiday in whatever way you celebrate or enjoy.

At Early Dismissal today we will begin our Winter Break. Your PVA provides a wonderful lunch for us to start the holiday right – no one can resist food, especially when it might include dessert! Everyone, students AND faculty, seem to need one. The natives are getting restless – as they say.

The students in Upper, CommArts, and PreUpper have all been tortured (at least if you ask them about it) by final exams. I heard conversations like, "I did well" and mom said, "no, really, how did you do?", the response was "Mooolooooommmmm, reallllllly I did good". So I guess you will find out soon enough. Don't forget that they will have paperless report cards beginning this semester.

The next Weekly News will be dated January 11th. Have Happy Holiday from MSA (and Merry Christmas from me).

"H" is for Hooray!

Hooray is right! The following students have received college acceptances this past week! Congratulations to everyone of you – You are going to be GREAT!

Eric Brown was accepted to University of South Alabama in Mobile, AL, this was one of his top choices – Great Job!

Whitney Ott received her letter of acceptance from Lipscomb University in Nashville – Congratulations.

David Toler applied to and was accepted by Kennesaw State University – Wonderful.

Hooray for everyone!

I'm Sorry, Alex

As careful as I try to be while writing the newsletter, something slipped through unnoticed (that is of course until the error of my ways was pointed out upon receiving the News). Last week in the "5-4-3-2-1- Blast Off" article, I listed Alex Silver as a participant in the Mad Scientist Association. I should have listed Alex Silverman. It's important to me to get the names right.

Refrigerator Notes

Winter Holiday's will begin with early dismissal on December 21st. The dismissal schedule is as follows: L/M 12:15pm, PU/CA/U 12:30pm – the buses will depart shortly thereafter. Students will return to classes on January 7th.

Winter Learning begins January 7th for PU/CA/U.

Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday is Monday, January 21st, MSA will be closed that day – NO SCHOOL.
